

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A wireless control unit includes a controller having wireless transmitter circuitry for transmitting game information, and a console interface/adaptor for converting one of the communication ports of the game console into a wireless receiver/transmitter. The console interface/adaptor also includes an additional communication port so as to provide the user with access to the used communication port while the interface/adaptor is operably disposed within the communication port of the game console.